

THE ROLE OF DEHYDROEPIANDROSTERONE LEVELS ON PHYSIOLOGIC ACCLIMATIZATION TO CHRONIC MOUNTAINEERING ACTIVITY.

Wen-Chih Lee¹, Shu-Man Chen¹, Ming-Chieh Wu², Chien-Wen Hou², Yu-Chiang Lai², Yi-Hung Laio², Chin-Hung Lin³, Chia-Hua Kuo².

¹Committee of General Studies, Shih Hsin University; ²Laboratory of Exercise Biochemistry, Taipei Physical Education College; ³Department of Kinesiology, Yen-Ze University, Taipei, Taiwan

BACKGROUND: Previous studies have reported that glucose tolerance can be improved by short-term altitude living and activity. However, some literatures agree that insulin sensitivity is increased at altitude. The present study investigated the effect of

METHOD:

RESULTS:

CONCLUSIONS: